

Bernard Waller

Director
nettleontribe

Bernard Waller is a registered architect and Director at nettleontribe with over 36 years of experience across commercial, residential, health, laboratory, industrial, adaptive reuse, interior, and hospitality projects. He joined the practice in 1996 and became a Director in 2007, contributing significantly to its reputation for design quality and delivery excellence. nettleontribe is a national architectural practice with

A graduate of the University of Technology, Sydney, Bernard's career has been shaped by a belief that good design must balance innovation with buildability and economic grounding. His work spans a wide variety of sectors, from complex commercial and industrial facilities to housing, healthcare, and specialist laboratory design—consistently integrating practical solutions with strong design outcomes.

Through nettleontribe, Bernard has also supported a 3 year sponsorship of postgraduate research into modern methods of construction at the Western Sydney University, reflecting his interest in advancing architectural knowledge and practice.

With nearly three decades at nettleontribe, Bernard continues to lead with a focus on design integrity, rigorous delivery, and projects that create lasting value for clients and communities.